

ILLUSTRATION GUIDELINES

All images must be accompanied by:

- Captions with credit lines
- Alt-text descriptions
- A completed design list
- High-resolution TIFF, JPEG, or PNG files
- Permissions documentation
- Figure callouts in the manuscript (unless an insert is being used)

Digital Images

- All image files should be submitted digitally. Please do not send email attachments piecemeal.
- Illustrations should not be embedded in the manuscript file.
- Digital illustrations should be submitted as individual files with the following specifications:
 - All digital images should be either TIFF, JPEG, or PNG files. PDFs may be acceptable—please send a sample for review.
 - Images must be scanned at a minimum resolution of 300 dpi (dots per inch) and should be at least 6 inches along one side. If you check the image dimensions under Properties/Details, one side should be at least 1800 pixels.
- Do not attempt to manipulate the resolution. Please send original image files.
- Do not Photoshop any images. Any alterations to the original file can decrease the image clarity. If alterations are necessary (cropping, brightness, etc.), please note them on your design list. Our graphic professionals will optimize the images for print.
- Note that most images sized for web pages are too small. Original files should be requested from the source.
- If images are scanned from a book or other printed source, the descreen option should be selected during scanning.
- Film stills or screen captures should be created at the largest size possible on screen.

Print Photographs, Slides, and Transparencies

- All print photographs should be 4" x 6" or larger. Slides should be 35 mm and all transparencies should be high quality.
- Each photo should be labeled with the figure number, either on the back of the image or on photo sleeves with stickers. Slides and transparencies should also be placed in photo sleeves and labeled.
- DO NOT write directly on the front or back of photos or slides provided to the Press.

Organization, Placement, and Captions

- All design elements (images, figures, tables, charts, and graphs) should be accounted for on a design list. The design list must be returned to the Press with the final manuscript.
- Figure numbers and file names should begin anew with each chapter (1.1, 1.2, 1.3, 2.1, 2.2, etc.) or be numbered sequentially (1, 2, 3, etc.) if they will be grouped together in an insert.

FOLLOW US ON SOCIAL MEDIA!

Bluesky: @upmississippi.bsky.social // Instagram: @upmississippi // Facebook: University Press of Mississippi

- Images should be referred to by file name on the design list, captions, and in the callouts so all references match one other.
- Captions should be included with the figure callouts—see below.
- For inserts, captions must be typed in a numbered list in a separate, consolidated Word file. The numbers of the captions should correspond to the file names and figure numbers.
- Each caption should include the appropriate credit line for its respective image. Sometimes an overall credit line can be placed on the copyright page, for example when all or most of the illustrations are from the author's collection. You should cross-check permission letters for correct wording where applicable. For images with no captions or credit lines needed, indicate with <no caption> for clarity.
- In the manuscript, the approximate location of each illustration should be indicated by typing the figure number in boldface, in angle brackets following the paragraph that references the illustration. Here is an example of text with the figure callout and caption:

In contrast to the earliest French settlers in Louisiana, the Acadians were a strikingly homogenous group. A full 70 percent of their ancestors came from the Poitou-Saintonge-Aunis region alone (figure 3.4), and within that group, 70 percent came from within a twenty-mile radius of a single town, Loudun, in the province of Poitou. The languages that contributed to Acadian French were Oil dialects, meaning that Acadian French arrived with a great deal in common with the French already spoken in Louisiana.

<figure 3.4>

Figure 3.4. Acadian origins. Darker areas indicate regions providing more settlers. Map created by the author from data in Brasseaux 2005:16–17.

- Captions can be in a different color if needed to help distinguish them from the regular text.

Permissions

- University Press of Mississippi asserts scholarly fair use for some images in certain contexts. Please check with your editor before seeking any permissions.
- We will need permission documentation for any images that are not in the public domain or considered fair use. Sample permissions letters are available on our website.
- All permissions must include print and electronic rights.
- All permissions must include worldwide distribution rights.
- When determining which images need permission:
 - Images published prior to January 1, 1929: In the public domain, do not need permission.
 - Images published between 1929–1970: May be in public domain, research required to determine status.
 - Images published after 1970: Usually require permission.

Comics/Film Stills and Permissions

- Comics and film are visual mediums and cannot be discussed without being viewed. We ask our authors to use discretion and limit their use of images as much as possible.
- If a full panel, page, or film still is used and discussed/analyzed in the text, then it is often considered fair use and does not require permission.

FOLLOW US ON SOCIAL MEDIA!

Bluesky: @upmississippi.bsky.social // Instagram: @upmississippi // Facebook: University Press of Mississippi

- Any images used as cover art or included in the text without discussion are considered decoration and require permission.

Musical Examples

- Musical examples are treated as images and require captions, bracketed callouts, and alt-text descriptions. All musical examples should be accounted for on a design list.
- We cannot use more than four bars of music without permission. Check with your editor or acquisitions assistant before requesting permissions.

Tables

- Each table should have a callout with a table number (numbered separately from figures) and a title, and any sources or other notes should be listed below the table rather than in an endnote. Here are two examples of tables:

<Table 5.3>

Table 5.3. Mississippi Service Sector Employment
County	Percent Growth	Percent Change
Adams	7.3	+0.72
Coahoma	14.9	+7.59
Tunica	62.5	+56.08
Washington	6.9	+0.62

Source: "Gaming in the Mississippi Economy," June 2000.

<Table 3.1>

Table 3.1 Subject Pronouns in Louisiana French and Louisiana Creole

Louisiana French		Louisiana Creole
je	on, nous-(autres)	mo	nous
tu	vous-autres	to	vous
il (m), alle/elle (f)	ils, ça, eux, eux-autres, eusse	li	yé

Charts and Graphs

- Charts and graphs, such as flow charts, pie charts, bar graphs, and line graphs, are treated as images and require captions, bracketed callouts, and alt-text descriptions. All charts and graphs should be accounted for on a design list.
- Charts and graphs can be labeled simply as "figures" and numbered along with the other figures or labeled separately as charts or graphs. They should be submitted as editable Word or Excel files.
- These elements are most often printed in black and white, so various patterns or shades of gray rather than colors should be used to distinguish different pieces of the chart/graph.

FOLLOW US ON SOCIAL MEDIA!

Bluesky: @upmississippi.bsky.social // Instagram: @upmississippi // Facebook: University Press of Mississippi

- Keep in mind that the page size of most books is 6 x 9 inches, so graphics with text should be designed to be legible at about 5 inches wide.

FOLLOW US ON SOCIAL MEDIA!

Bluesky: @upmississippi.bsky.social // Instagram: @upmississippi // Facebook: University Press of Mississippi